ALOUETTE

All together now chaps, on the count of three: ''Alouette, gentille Alouette, Alouette, je te plumerai!'' Jolly good. Now pay attention, you is going to be educated. 'Alouette' is French for 'skylark'. (not many people know that), and the song is about pulling her feathers out. In other words, giving some poor bird a good plucking. What a rotten way to feather your nest — the R.S.P.B. shall hear of this! As for the delicious 'demoiselle herself, she's a Parisienne and her parents had to sign the model release form, 'cos she's too young to sign for herself. Nuff said.

You know the feeling. A night out at some wickedly expensive disco club. Lots of high decibel funk doing your brain a disservice. All the available girls giving you the cold shoulder of mutton dressed up as lamb. And the only thing to look forward to is a reasonably rude routine from the floor show. So finally this gorgeous little dancer comes out to strut her stuff and does an extremely warm gossip imitation all over the stage. Except she's gone and kept her bloody knickers on! Well, in our endless crusade against such rotten spoil-sports, we thought we'd let you see Hazel the way you'd really like to. Hot stuff, huh! Then we followed her into the dressing room for an intimate peep at our artiste relaxing back-stage. But the poor girl had turned herself on, what with all that knickerless cavorting. Careful with the hairbrush, darling. (These pictures were shot exclusively for Knave at the Kilburncabana discorama ballroom, Shoot Up Hill, London NW2.)

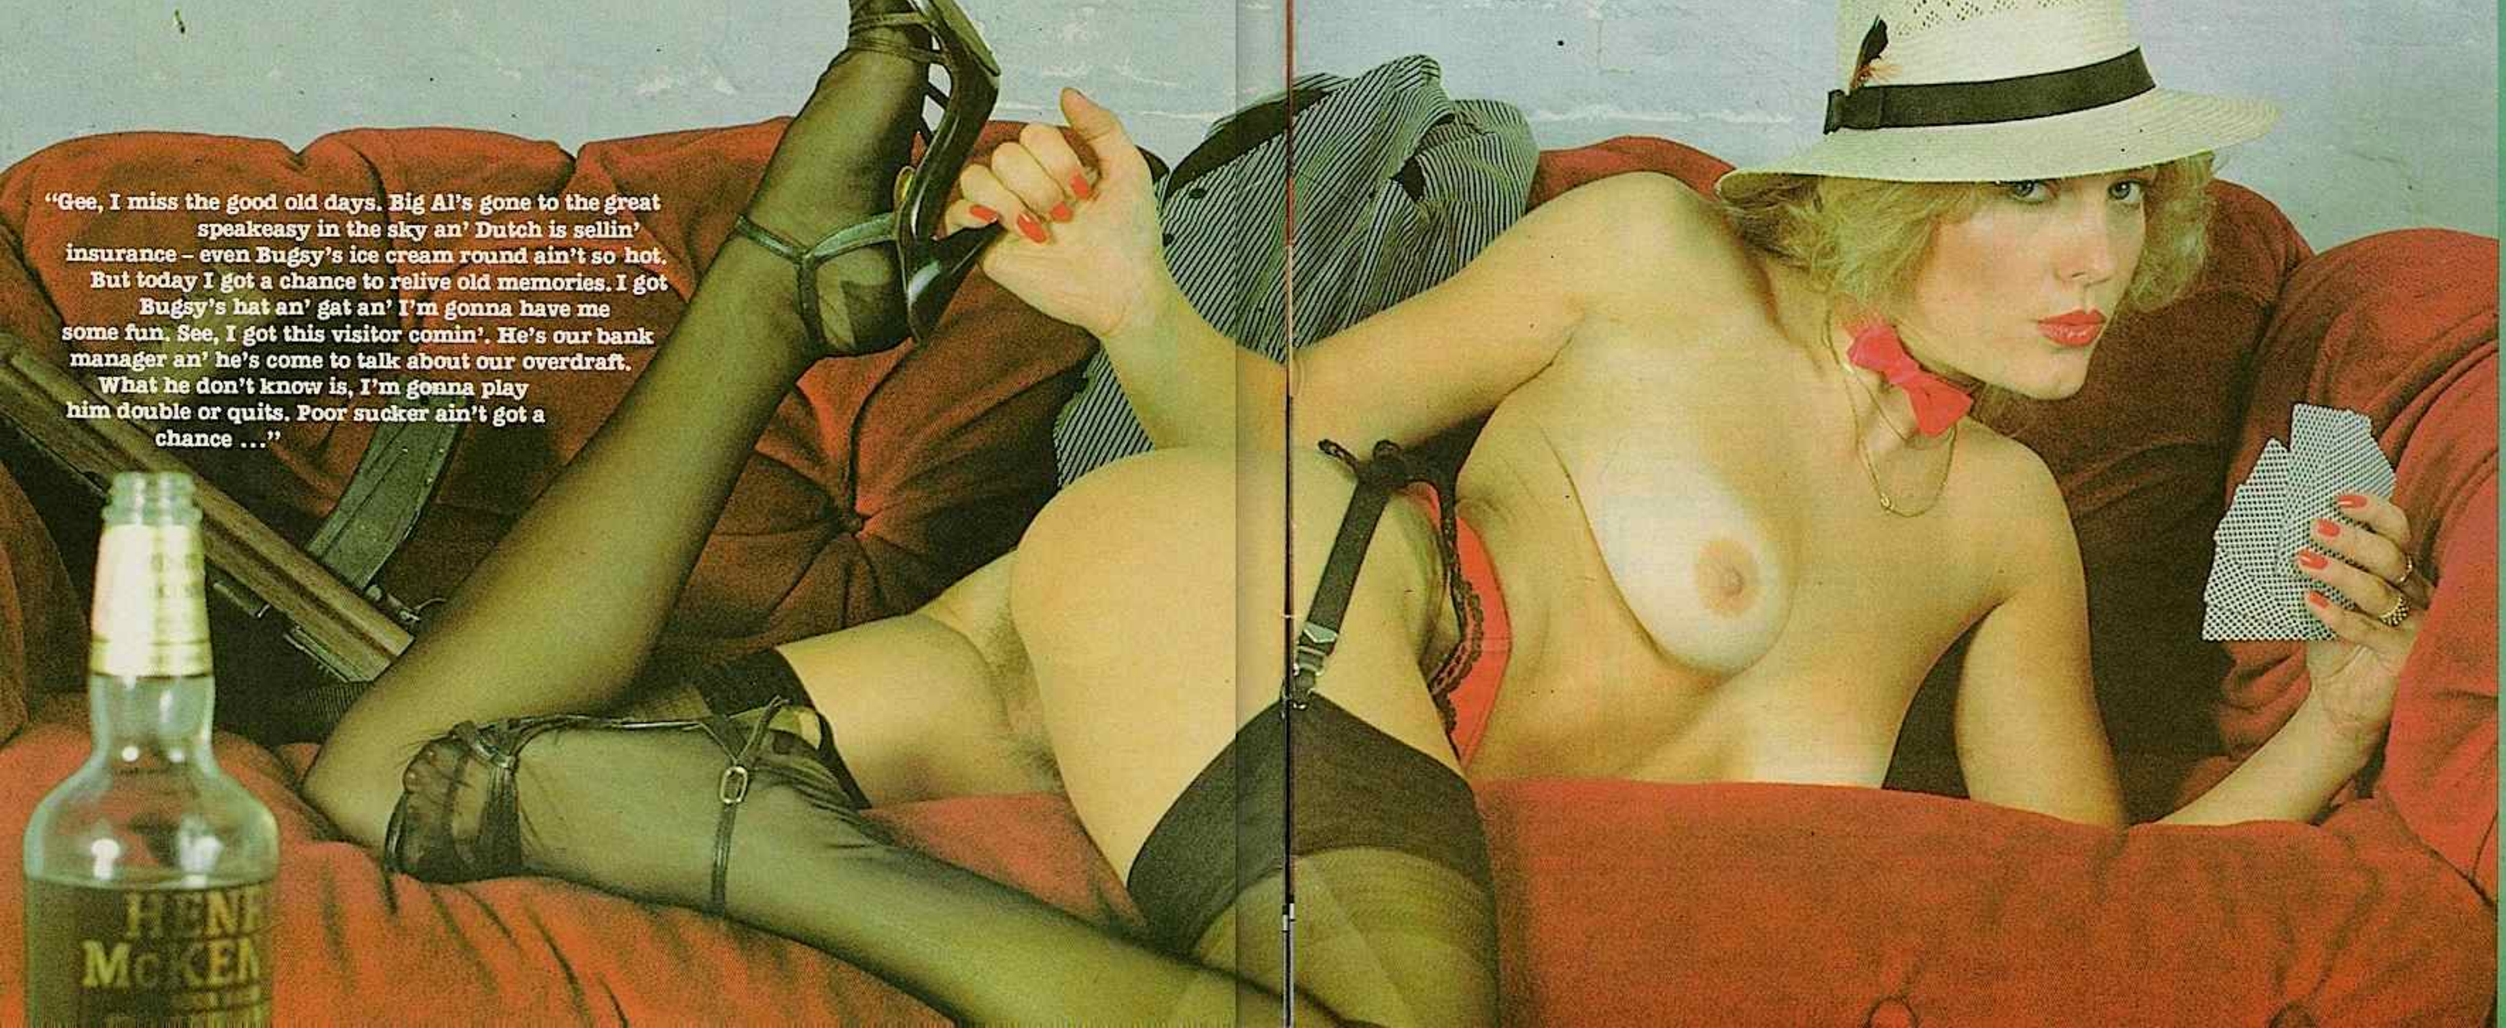
"So we retire from the bank jobs an' he hangs up his gun, only I get to thinkin' about the good times ... an' y'know – it hurts.

"Like the time I stick my gat in this bank manager's face an' he gets down on his knees.

"Begs me to go easy on him an' take anythin' only don't shoot. So we rifles through his drawers, pick up a lot of big ones and take it on the lam. There's cops from five counties chasin' us to the border. But we shoot out their tyres an' head for Mexico. We're flat busted in a month, but it's worth it.

"Gee, I miss the good old days. Big Al's gone to the great speakeasy in the sky an' Dutch is sellin' insurance – even Bugsy's ice cream round ain't so hot. But today I got a chance to relive old memories. I got Bugsy's hat an' gat an' I'm gonna have me some fun. See, I got this visitor comin'. He's our bank manager an' he's come to talk about our overdraft. What he don't know is, I'm gonna play him double or quits. Poor sucker ain't got a chance ..."



NEFERTITI

Eyes down for another educative girlie blurb. Once upon a time there was this Egyptian queen, Nefertiti to her old man, Mrs. Pharoah to you – and Grannie to Tutenkamen. We only know about her because some archaeologists excavated her bust – poor thing. The Egyptian royal family eventually died out and it's thought that this was Nefertiti's fault because of her craze for contraception – she spent all her time trying not to be a mummy! To be honest, we only called the model that because it sounded rude. The lovely lady beneath the make-up, (thanks be to Dean), is called Marie – and she's a blonde. It's amazing what you can do with a spot of mascara on the pubics . . .

KNAVE'S AMATEUR MODEL OF THE MONTH

You've got to admit it, this month we've really come up with some beautiful girls – and none more than the utterly stunning Suzi. She's 19 years young, has a 35-24-35 figure and comes from what used to be called Shropshire, now called Salop (which is a very rude word in French, as it happens). She works as a receptionist for a firm of solicitors – but not for long we suspect. She fell in love with the lights, the camera and the sheer glamour of it all – well we all like being made a fuss of. And we fell for her too – in a big way. A natural blonde and a natural model, she'd like to take it up full time. And she'll probably do very well. Just remember where you saw her first – and where you might see her next. You see, we're thinking about doing another session with her soon. What do you think, chaps – should we or shouldn't we?
